FORBES & BRO.

THREE FIRES.

Narrow Escape of Alex Brent's Family.

Mrs. Johnson's Residence And The Adams Homestead Also Burned.

The residence of A. C. Brent, the Seventh street colored grocer, was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, together with entire contents. The building was situated at the corner of Twelfth and Campbell streets and was a very substantial cottage. The owner of the house had been to Clarksville and returned shortly after the fire. His wife was the only occupant of the building and she had a very narrow escape, barely having time to get out in her night clothes. The fire department turned out in a very few minutes, but owing to the combustible nature of the building, the flames were soon beyond control.

The loss is about $1,800. There was $600 insurance on the building, $400 on piano and $520 on furniture. It is not known how the fire originated.

FIRE IN THE COUNTRY.

Mrs. Johnson's Handsome House Near Striped Bridge Burned.

The residence of Mrs. John Johnson, near the Striped Bridge, was destroyed by fire Sunday. No one was at home except Mrs. Johnson and she was asleep when the fire occurred and only awakened in time to get out of the burning building. The house was a comparatively new one, a two-story frame, and was worth with its contents about $4,000. It was insured for $2,000. It is not known how the fire originated.

ADAMS HOMESTEAD

Destroyed By Fire Sunday, at a Loss of $1,000.

The old Adams Homestead, south of town, where so many reunions of the descendants of John Adams have been held, was burned down Sunday. The old house was occupied by Nel Woodward, a colored tenant, and the house and several adjacent buildings were destroyed, entailing a loss of about $1,000. It was owned by Mrs. M. Adams. The origin of the fire was mysterious and incendiary is suspected. There was no insurance.

DRESS CAUGHT ON FIRE

And Mrs. Luttrell Had a Narrow Escape.

Mrs. F. E. Luttrell, of Pee Dee, had a very narrow escape from serious or perhaps fatal injury yesterday morning. While standing near a grate her dress caught on fire and quick as a flash the flames leaped up the full length of her body. Mr. Luttrell was in the room and as his wife attempted to run he caught her and held her while he picked up a bucket of water and threw it over her, checking the flames until he could smother them out. Mrs. Luttrell escaped with slight injuries, but her husband's hands were very painfully burned.

WILL PROBATED.

R. H. Moseley Estate Left to Wife During Life.

The will of the late R. H. Moseley was probated yesterday. He directed that all his property go to his wife, to be held during her life, and at her death the farm becomes the property of his son, J. B. Moseley. The remainder of his property is then to be equally divided between his four daughters. The will was written and signed July 28, 1900, and was witnessed by W. J. Renshaw and R. S. Wortham.

BURROWS CONVICTED

The Fairview Negro Was Given Thirteen Years.

First Batch of Indictments Returned Saturday—Other Court News.

The John Henry Burrows case was placed on trial last week and resulted in a conviction. Burrows was given a sentence of 13½ years for the murder of Otis Lacy, another negro.

Wm. Long, shooting on public highway, fined $25.

Les Lindsay, shooting Jim Wootton, fined $50.

Four cases selling liquor to minors, acquittals.

The election indictments were all filed away with leave to reinstate, and bail discharged in each case.

Kitty Fraser, col., granted a divorce from John Fraser.

The grand jury Saturday returned the following indictments:

Logan Watt, petit larceny.

Sam Gilke, c. c. d. w.

Chas. Ferguson, rape.

Jim Tucker, c. c. d. w.

Same, grand larceny.

Manuel Bowling, grand larceny

The grand jury is still in session.

The John Wilson murder case was called yesterday and trial entered into. This case will probably consume several days. Wilson killed Alex Wright at a picnic in Northeast Christian one day last August. There are more than a hundred witnesses in the case.

SLOW TO ACT.

The Subscription Committee Meeting With No Encouragement.

No further steps have been taken by the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to the Cadiz-Gracey railroad. The point of connection with the I. C. is one that Hopkinsville people have not felt any very lively interest in. The people on the Gracey route themselves do not appear to want connection and are almost forcing the road to take another route.

JOHN NICK DIXON DEAD.

Remains Taken to Bennettstown And Interred Yesterday.

Mr. John Nick Dixon, aged 28 years, died at the asylum Sunday morning. His mind had been affected for several months and a few weeks ago he was placed in the institution for treatment. He gradually grew worse until the end came. His home was near Howell and he was a very popular young man and leaves a wide circle of friends.

The interment took place near Bennettstown yesterday.

DIED IN ASYLUM.

Remains Sent to Old Home For Interment.

Miss Virginia Bent, who was sent to the asylum here from Bowling Green about a year ago, died in the institution Sunday morning. The remains were shipped to Bowling Green Sunday afternoon and the interment took place in the cemetery at that place yesterday.

WEBB-COLEMAN.

Marriage on East Seventh Street Sunday Evening.

A wedding took place on East Seventh street Sunday afternoon. The contracting parties were Mr. John T. Webb and Miss Louise Coleman and the nuptial feast was solemnized at the home of the bride by Rev. C. H. Nash.

OUT ON BOND.

Slayer of William Faulkner Surrenders and Then Released.

Fields Hopson, the negro who killed Wm. Faulkner, also colored, at Rocky Ridge a few days ago, was arrested in Cadiz last Saturday by Jailer Ad Shoemaker. Hopson had come to Cadiz for the purpose of giving himself up, and was at the home of Col. Sims, his attorney, talking over the matter when the arrest was made, says the Record.

He was taken before County Judge Bingham, and waiving examination, was held over to await the action of the May grand jury. He gave bond in the sum of $1,000 with C. A. Chappell and N. C. Headley as his sureties, and was released from custody.

In the civil suit for $5,000 damage by the wife of Faulkner, summons was served on him and the case will be set for trial on the 7th day of the next May Circuit Court.

CITY COUNCIL.

Holds the Regular Monthly Meeting Friday Night.

The City Council held the regular monthly meeting Friday night, but transacted no important business.

Monthly reports showed 79 arrests for February and $681 in fines collected.

The contract with the Water Company was renewed for another year.

A new electric light was ordered at the corner of 13th and Water streets.

Steps were taken looking to the opening of a street from C. B. Webb's to the Canton pike.

CAPTURED TWO.

Webster County Men Caught In This City.

Chief Matthews on Saturday arrested Jim Green and Lee Broadus, two men who recently escaped from the Webster county jail. Officer Litchfield, of Providence, arrived here last night and will take the prisoners back this morning.

It is easier for a young man to fool his own mother than it is for him to fool any other woman.

FOUR YEARS MORE.

President McKinley Inaugurated With Much Pomp.

Great Crowds But Rainy Weather Greet The Occasion

Washington March 4.—The house, which is still in the legislative day of Friday, was in session from 2 to 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening from 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports that crowded in upon it.

The usual scenes at the inauguration of a President were all enacted to-day and the program was carried out without a serious hitch anywhere.

The President reappointed all of his old cabinet ministers except attorney General Griggs.

Among the many distinguished visitors in the city were 12 Governors of states and their staff.

COUGHT A CONVICT.

Escaped From Clarksville Chain Gang Last Friday.

Officer Cravens arrested Ad Reese, col., yesterday. He is wanted in Clarksville, where he escaped from the chain gang last Friday. The Tennessee officers were notified and Reese will be taken back to day to serve out his sentence.

BARN BURNED

And Fine Herd of Jersey Cattle Perish.

A PROBLEM.

My little home is neat and bright,
My little life is charming,
And nothing in our quiet life
Would seem to be alarming.

But can no kind doctor give
The aid for which I'm looking?
I'm sure I shall a victim fall
To Dolly's love of cooking!

She tries each new receipt she sees
(When will the list be ended?)
And brings me something every day
Which she declares is splendid.

I like the pretty little cake,
And try to look delighted,
'Twould almost break her tender heart
To see her dishes wasted.

She'll say, "Dear John! I'm sure you'll find
The cooking just delicious,
Although I must admit it took
A little bit suspicious."

Or, "Try this lemon tart; it's fine—
A rule I got from mother."
I smile, but have our dear mamma
Will never give another.

The gingerbread that Dolly makes
Is "Marion Harland's" latest.
It may be, but I shouldn't like
To think it was her greatest.

The Journal furnished Charlotte russe:
"Alas! good Mrs. Brown
Would not have known her favorite dish
Had it been set before her!"

The "Century Cook Book" gave croquettes:
They tasted very curious.
And Mrs. Lincoln's Boston friends
Would make Bostonians furious.

"Molasses pie!" I wonder if
The clever Mrs. Phillips
Suspected when she wrote the rule
What trouble she was brewing!

In desperation, yesterday,
I should very nicely
"Dear Dolly, are you always sure
To keep the rule precisely?"

She shook her pretty head and laughed,
And made the frank confession:
"Indeed, I don't, for all good cooks
Just use their own discretion!"

"Of course, you can't expect, my dear,
That luck will never fail."
The best of cooks will sometimes fail,
And all things go contrary.

I always keep the main idea,
But where would be the pleasure
If one must be forever tied
To tiresome weight and measure?

And now the mystery is solved
Will some one please advise me
What can be done to remedy
The state of things that arise em?

For I must ask what Dolly cooks,
Because I just adore her—
Although she won't abide by rules
And weights and measures bore her!

ABOARD THE QUEEN

By Margaret Van Norman.

(Copyright, 1901, by the Author's Syndicate.)

"Jack, old fellow. Did you know that I have a sister? I had half forgotten the fact myself until there came a letter last evening announcing that she was boarding schools and was 'coming up to keep house' for me. She sails on the Queen. Deming tells me she takes the same boat. Look after the kid a bit, won't you? Keep her from firing or falling overboard. Yours, TOM BRIELEY."

JACK HAMILTON swore softly to himself. The idea of being "chaperone, and probably father confessor to a bread-and-butter schoolgirl," filled him with horror. What on earth could he talk to her about, he asked himself, and why hadn't he enough common sense to open his letters before coming on board? Then he could have missed the boat.

The truth of the matter was that genial, whole-souled Jack was in love—had been for three days—and, worst of all, he did not know her name. He only knew that "her face, it was the fairest that e'er the sun shone on," and that mornings she rode in Golden Gate park.

He had haunted the park and exercised all his ingenuity, but had not managed an acquaintance. And now he was off for six months of bridge building in the White pass. He realized he had not even a fighting chance with Fate, and felt correspondingly disagreeable, as he stood looking back over the last widening waters.

Already the distance was blotting out the Golden Gate; the Cliff house was a blur against Sutter Heights, and only the faint, green sweep of trees above the sand dunes marked the Golden Gate park.

In fancy he could see a certain dainty little figure riding there in and out among the winding paths. Jack drew himself up with a start, his "mooning" would never do. He resolved to hunt up the little schoolgirl and amuse her. He turned, only to stand transfixed, for there, almost at his elbow, was his "Lady of the Park." Her habit was replaced by the jaunty of yachting costumes, and her face was radiant with health and happiness.

Jack felt the spirit of the Conqueror upon him. The Queen was a very different matter from San Francisco. As the day wore on, however, he felt his courage wane. He bribed the mate to introduce him, but she said gently to him that she did not care to make any acquaintances. And, indeed, conversation would have seemed sacrilegious to her. There was the glorious ocean and the wonderful wind out of the west, and he had eyes and soul for nothing else. She thought of life in far-away lands, of the little brown people in their island of flowers, of the fighting line in the Philippines, until, at last, the sea grew gray under a leaden sky, and the fog came down and shut out the world.

Everyone fled to stateroom or cabin. The great fog horns were shrieking, the sea was running high, but its waves called her, and she struggled back to the railing, only to discover that the boat was rocking so furiously she dared not leave. She laughed a little to herself, and wondered if she must stay there all night. No, some one was coming.

"Will you help me, please?" she called.

Would he help her! Jack managed to restrain his joy enough to offer his arm with some degree of salacious.

"I believe I prefer the dark and the fog to the cabin," she continued, "I am not in the mood for laughter. All this is too wonderful."

"Let me stay with you, I want so much to know you," blurted out poor Jack.

The girl looked frightened. Then an inspiration came to him. He would appeal to her sympathy.

"You are, I have a little charge some place on board," and Jack, who had promptly and completely forgotten his protegee until the present moment, went on: "She'll be an awful bore, but briefly, that's her brother, wrote me to look after her, and I really haven't an idea what to do, and—"

"I thought, perhaps you would help me for her sake, you know."

"What did you say her name is?" asked the girl. "May I see the letter?"

And they passed by the cabin door, while she read the letter, a smile lighting up her pliant face.

"So you are to keep her from drifting or falling overboard?" she said.

"I think I may be able to help you. Perhaps Miss Briely need not bother you at all."

"Oh, if you will help me, I shall not mind in the least," returned Jack, eagerly. "And may I not know your name?"

"Certainly," she was giving him her

"I PREFER THE DARK AND THE FOG TO the cabin," she continued, "I am not in the mood for laughter. All this is too wonderful."

hand at parting, and looked up with a queer little smile.

"It is Jocelyn Briely," she said.

"But I am such an awful bore."

"Are you never going to forgive me? I carried out half of Tom's instructions when I rescued you that night, and—"

and she was off before he could over the side of the boat, watching an Indian canoe as it skimmed the waters.

It was Jack's last day. He had been merciless in his wooing, but he was desperately in earnest, and fighting against time.

To Jocelyn, who knew nothing beyond a trip to Oakland or around the bay, under the guidance of Sister Celestine, the days had seemed like a fairy tale. There had been the long, long tramps while the fog hung over the Pacific, and later, the magical days when the ship floated among the piney islands of the Canadian coast. And now there was a queer little ache in her heart which she could not understand.

"Do you know, Jocelyn. It's our last afternoon?" Tom's voice had a hopeless ring.

Jocelyn was quite absorbed in the Indian canoe, but she nodded in reply. "I shall not have opportunity to write, but—I shall think of you, very, very often. May I keep a diary, pretending I am talking with you? Perhaps you will let me show it to you some day."

Her face was turned away, but a more emphatic nod told her heard.

"Jocelyn, little girl, unless it may mean coming to you, it will mean little whether I return or—"

At last she looked up at him, and his hand covered the little "one" on the rail.

"You darling," he whispered.

NAPOLÉON'S EVIL EYE.

A Feature of the Emperor That Revealed His Interior Love of Warfare.

Lord Russell, when the present writer questioned him about Napoleon, said, and emphatically repeated, that there was something very evil in his eye, says Goldwin Smith, in Atlantic. He added that the eye flashed at an allusion to the excitement of war as contrasted with the dullness of Elba. A feature of his character which, perhaps, has hardly been enough noticed, was a sheer lust of war, and especially of battles, the emotions of which, Napoleon seems to have owned, were agreeable to him. It will mean little probable that this had a share, together with his insatiable ambition and his political need of glory, in launching him on his invasion of Russia, for which it is difficult to assign any political purpose, as he refused to restore the kingdom of Poland.

Another feature not much noticed in Napoleon's character is his classicism. In his early days he had employed his golden leisure partly in reading Roman history; and instead of being repelled he had been fascinated by the presentation of the Roman empire in Tacitus. In his later years, his eagles, his legion of Honor, his political nomenclature, and the general cast of his political institutions. Perhaps the image of the Roman empire as a model for reorganization floated vaguely before his mind as it does before those of our imperialists at the present day. A grosser anachronism, it is needless to say, there could not be than an attempt to impose on the European family of living nations anything like the yoke imposed by Rome on a set of conquered provinces in which national spirit was extinct.

NEW SENATE.

Many Changes Took Place Yesterday in New Senate.

Of Fifteen New Senators, Thirteen Enter That Body For First Term.

Washington, March 2.—When the Senate adjourned Saturday the term of thirty of its members expired. Of this number fifteen Senators have been re-elected, and in thirteen cases new men have been elected to fill the vacancies. This is an unlucky number. The terms of Senators Kenney, of Delaware, and Thurston, of Nebraska, expire on March 3, but their successors have not yet been elected. Vacancies exist in three other senatorships because of deadlocks in the Legislatures of Delaware, Montana and Nebraska. Delaware has never been able to secure a successor to Senator Higgins, Montana is still fighting over the term for which credentials were issued for W. A. Clark, who has become the successor of Senator Carter for a term of six years from March 3, and the Nebraska Legislature has not filled the place made vacant by the death of Haywood, whose election was closely followed by his death, Senator Allen being appointed by the Governor pending an election. In addition to these changes, Utah, Vermont, Minnesota and Iowa have lately sent new men to the Senate in the persons of Senators Kearns, Clapp, Hillingham and Belliver, the last named holding his seat by the appointment of the Governor of Iowa, the Legislature to elect his successor not meeting until next December. Senator Quay, after a short absence from the Senate, is again in his old seat.

The Senators who have been re-elected for terms of six years from March 3 are: Bacon, of Georgia; Berry, of Arkansas; Cullom, of Illinois; Elkins, of West Virginia; Frye, of Maine; Hoar, of Massachusetts; McMillan, of Michigan; Martin, of Virginia; Morgan, of Alabama; Nelson, of Minnesota; Sewell, of New Jersey; Tillman, of South Carolina; Warren, of Wyoming, and Watson, of Rhode Island.

The thirteen new Senators elected to terms beginning March 4 are: Burton, of Kansas, to succeed Baker; Simmons, of North Carolina, to succeed Butler; Foster, of Louisiana, to succeed Caffery; Clark, of Montana, to succeed Carter; Burnham, of New Hampshire, to succeed Chandler; Bailey, of Texas, to succeed Chilton; Blackburn, of Kentucky, to succeed Lindsay; Mitchell, of Oregon, to succeed McBride; Gamble, of South Dakota, to succeed Pettigrew; Dubois, of Idaho, to succeed Shoup; McLaurin, of Mississippi, to succeed Sullivan; Carmack, of Tennessee, to succeed Turley, and Patterson, of Colorado, to succeed Wolcott.

Of the so-called new Senators, a number have been in Congress. Blackburn, of Kentucky; Mitchell, of Oregon, and Dubois, of Idaho, have been in the Senate, and Bailey, of Texas, Gamble, of South Dakota, and Carmack, of Tennessee, are members of the House of Representatives. Patterson, of Colorado, was a delegate in the House of Representatives before his State was admitted to the Union.

ALL THE BEST PRIZES

Won by the Hopkinsville Fiddlers at Clarksville.

The old time fiddlers' contest at Clarksville Friday night for the benefit of the Masonic Temple, was a big success, the receipts amounting to about $450. There were 32 fiddlers, who took part in the contest. Judges were from Hopkinsville, Erin and Bowling Green. Mr. W. A. Wilgus representing this city.

The Hopkinsville Quartette won three prizes, all contested for, including the chief contest of Clarksville's fiddlers.

The Leaf Chronicle, in speaking of the Quartette, says: "Just a word about the Hopkinsville visitors. Our sister city could not have sent four more genial, modest and capable gentlemen than Messrs. Bartley, Randle, Hord and Brown, whose playing elicited generous rounds of applause, and decidedly was one of the most noteworthy features of the evening. The newspaper craft was especially proud of Brother Bartley, a shining light of Hopkinsville journalism." All of the visitors were elegantly and hospitably entertained in the homes of the people of Clarksville.

GAVE DIRECTIONS

About Making Her Coffin Then Suddenly Expired.

Wife of Richard Orten Passes Away at Her Home Near Clardy.

Clardy, Ky., March 2.—Mrs. Sarah A. Orten, wife of Mr. Richard M. Orten, died very suddenly at her home near here Thursday morning. She had been in very poor health for nearly two years, but was able to go about most of the time. She had recently suffered an attack of the grip, but had sufficiently recovered to be up. She complained of not feeling well for several days prior to her death, however, Thursday morning about 3 o'clock she told her husband that she was going to die and wanted his uncle, James Orten, to make her coffin, adding "for I know he can make a good one." Then turning upon her side she fell into a peaceful slumber, from which there is no awakening. Her mind, at times, had been affected and she had frequently talked of dying and had several times given directions about her burial, etc. On account of this her husband did not think seriously of her premonition until it was noticed that she was sinking, when she expired almost instantly.

Deceased was a daughter of the late H. H. Jones, and was a Christian woman who leaves a host of friends. She was 35 years old. The interment took place at Macedonia yesterday.

Mr. Adcock's shoulder was dislocated and his head and face were badly cut and bruised. Dr. J. E. Stone rendered the necessary surgical aid, and while his injuries are very painful he will be out in a few days.

Mr. Adcock's buggy was badly wrecked.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

See and get on all druggists. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

A Cup of Good Coffee

To get a really good cup of coffee you'll have to start back of the actual making; you'll have to look to the roasting and the grinding. In ARBUCKLES' you have a coffee that's scientifically roasted, and delivered to you with all the pores of the berry hermetically sealed. You're sure of a good cup of coffee because all the coffee flavor and aroma are kept intact until you want it. The fame of ARBUCKLES' induced other coffee packers to put out imitations of it. These imitations cost the grocer (and you) a cent a pound less than ARBUCKLES'. But don't be tempted to buy a package of some other coffee when you can get for it is actually less expensive than the cheap kind; goes further—besides being better flavored, more satisfying.

Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee

You will find a list of useful articles in each package of Arbuckles' Coffee. A definite part of one of these articles becomes yours when you buy the coffee. The one you select from the list will be sent you on condition that you send to our Nodden Department a certain number of signatures cut from the wrappers.

BOB TAYLOR

Draws Like a Porous Plaster—The Seats Will All Be Sold.

Gov. Bob Taylor will deliver his new lecture at the Opera House tomorrow night. He calls it "Sentiment" and those who have heard it say it is his best one. The seats are nearly all sold in advance and he will address an audience limited only by the capacity of the Opera House, The Courier-Journal of Saturday, says of the lecture:

"Gov. Taylor's lecture was epigrammatic rather than oratorical. The definition of sentiment served as a vehicle for an array of descriptive adjectives and beautiful similes. There was not a tear in the talk. It was all joy and beauty, laughter and song, humor and poetry; the pathos was left out because, according to Gov. Taylor, he who has not a song in his heart nor love nor light has no sentiment. And, according to the gifted Tennesseean, sentiment is "ministering angel of light, an angel whose wings flutter in my dreams; an angel which sheds its sweet influence on every pathway." He held it to be "a light that finds a mirror of enchantment in every fantastic stream."

But the talk was not at all idealism for in listening to him one could almost hear the bores shout and splashes of boys at play in the old swimming hole, and other phases of life itself.

Gov. Taylor told well a number of splendid stories. His description of a sweet girl graduate reading her essay on "Flowers" was a fine bit of humor, but he also wondered what old grisly friend would not recall some tender memories connected with a "little blue-sashed bundle of organdy with a fluttering heart in it."

Here are a few things sentiment was:

"There are no noble sentiments that are not born of love.

"The glory of one beautiful woman is enough to build a paradise in any man's heart.

"Sentiment has built every church in the world.

"Every soul has been waited to Heaven on the wings of sentiment.

"Sentiment has started all the wars and it has made all the martyrs suffer.

"Sentiment is the champagne of laughter and the sherry of song."

HELP FOR CRIPPLES.

Osteopathy Holds Out New Hope For The Afflicted.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Franklin, Ky., March 4th, 1901. EDITOR KENTUCKIAN:—There are many cripples who might be cured and there are many people who are becoming cripples who might have the use of their limbs were the proper steps taken before it is too late.

Does Osteopathy cure cripples? Yes many cripples are permanently cured by Osteopathy. The following is an example of the remarkable cures that are being constantly made by Osteopathic physicians. It is also an example of multitudes of cases that have been saved from the surgeon's knife and untimely death. Mr. J. B. Croton is prominent railway engineer formerly living at Bowling Green, Ky. He says of his daughter's case:

"In the spring of 1895 my daughter complained of a pain in her right knee. She was taken to one of our best physicians who put this limb in plaster of Paris. Seeing that my daughter was growing weaker and that the knee was getting worse, at my suggestion the physicians brought one of the best surgeons in Bowling Green. I asked him if he thought medicine was going to cure her. He said: No I'm afraid not. I asked him if he thought amputation necessary. He indicated that it was his idea.

I took my daughter to Dr. Briggs' private infirmary in Nashville, but she gained nothing by her stay there. I heard of Judge Goodnight's wonderful recovery while under treatment by the Osteopaths. After visiting him and hearing what it had done for him and others I took my daughter there for examination and without confidence placed her under treatment. They told me her hip was involved.

My daughter had not been under treatment two weeks before we saw an improvement in her condition. She got so she could sleep and her appetite returned. The doctors objected to our giving laxative medicine and without them to our surprise and gratification overcame the constipation that had resulted from the use of paraffin.

She was too weak when she went there to use crutches but the treatment gave her strength to use her crutches. From the two crutches she soon went to one crutch and a cane, then to the cane and finally laid aside the cane. She weighed 63 lbs. when she went to the Infirmary, now she weighs 103 lbs. Her limb that was wasted and withered is now nearly the same size as the other.

As to the history of the case I can refer to our pastor, Rev. W. T. Ferguson, of Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Bowling Green, Ky."

We certainly advise against the neglect of lameness however slight, especially in a child. It is true that Osteopathic physicians are able to find causes for such troubles that the Medical Doctor is unable to find. He is trained to this work. Many cases of epilepsy and other troubles that the medical profession do not pretend to cure are relieved by Osteopathic physicians. It does not matter what your trouble may be, Osteopathy may offer you the possibility of a cure. It deserves at least investigation on your part. Write with a statement of your case, for literature regarding the science and this institution. We will correspond.

Address, THE SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF OSTEOPATHY, (Incorporated.) Franklin, Ky.

DO YOU GET UP

WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. The regular fifty cent bottle sizes are sold by all drug stores.
